The danger is worse where fur can't fly

Israeli bombing has deterred all but the hardest aid agencies from southern Lebanon, but yesterday our man in Tyre, Ed O'Loughlin, reported that People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals had arrived to feed abandoned pets.

Michele Rokke (pictured), an undercover animal rights activist from Minnesota, rolled into Tyre in a large vehicle loaded with expensive cat and dog food.

Journalists told her a couple of horses, and lots of dogs and cats, had been seen a few kilometres away, where even the press dared not go, and then watched her go there.
